

February 10th, 2019

Dear Arron:

This letter is addressed to you; however, it is intended for all of Alice McKinna's grandchildren, and great grandchildren

As you are aware, your grandmother was diagnosed with Dementia in January 2018. Dementia is a progressive disease that causes a decline in memory. There is no cure for dementia, but treatment, and therapy can help to slow down the outcome.

Alice has other health issues; however, she has remarkably good genes thanks to her mother who lived until the age of 102. She is also hoping to have a few more good years.

As Alice's husband and Co-conservator, I feel it is a privilege and an honor to care for Alice, and to give her the respect, love and dignity that she deserves.

So why am I reaching out to Alice's grandchildren and great grandchildren?

First, I want to be very clear. Alice would love to have her grandchildren visit her, call her or send her cards. Hearing from her grandchildren is good therapy and one way to slow down dementia, but more importantly to know that her grandchildren love her, and she loves them.

For this reason, I am encouraging all her grandchildren to visit her, call her, and send her photos and cards. It will warm her heart, and yours too!

It is difficult for Alice to get out due to adult fatigue and lower back pain so visits must be in the comfort of her home.

After careful consideration as to how to make visits predictable and beneficial for her and her grandchildren, the following schedule has been adopted.

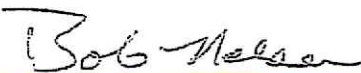

Starting on March 3rd, 2019, the first Sunday of each month from 1 to 4 pm will be reserved for Alice's grandchildren to visit her. The courtesy of a phone call the day before a planned visit will help to have Alice be prepared for the visit.

The visitation plan is for Alice's grandchildren and great grandchildren only, please do not bring uninvited people, as they will not be welcomed.

For those grandchildren who are distance, a phone call in the late afternoon or early evening would make Alice's day. Her phone number is 530-246-5622. She loves to get cards and photos from her family, and reminds me every day if I have checked the mail. Her address is 1335 Southfork Trail, Redding, CA 96003

Know that Alice sends her love to all of her grandchildren and is looking forward to seeing you or hearing from you soon. Her birthday is February 23rd, send a card or call her and make her day.

Best,
